Harvard and Princeton Have Strong Material—Yale Outlook Is Good if Pitchers Come to Time-Brown, Cornell, Pennsylvania and Others-Principa Games.

Earlier in the field than the professional players, most of the members of the various college baseball squads have already had some preparation for their approaching season. There has not been much opportunity for outdoor practice, but the college men have been limbering up in the cage-a form of practice the professional does not care for. The professionals have a much longer and more serious season to get ready for and prefer not to get ripe so soon.

The first instalment of Harvard players reported on February 10. The battery candidates started work in the cage, though the rest of the players were not to report until two weeks later. Coach Pieper and Capt. Leonard already have outlined the season's work at a mass meeting, and by this time things are pretty well under way with the Crimson's ball tossers. An outlook that is a bit better than usual should serve to add relish to the preparatory work. Coach Pieper did very well at Cambridge last season, and assisting him this season is A. L. Castle, who was a varsity pitcher on the 1906 nine. Castle will supervise the work of the battery

A man who is expected to be one of Harvard's best assets this year is Hartford, the left handed pitcher, who showed his quality last spring. He was good then and is expected to be better. He is in the electrical engineering department of the university, and that keeps him pretty busy, but he hopes to be able to get more time away from his college duties during the baseball season. Other box candidates at Harvard are Brennan and Slater, from last year's varsity souad. Also there are Hicks and Lanigan, freshman pitchers last year. Hicks is regarded as very promising material. His work on the freshman nine was excellent. While at Andover, Lanigan won games from Harvard. Yale and Princeton. He is a good hitter.

Harvard is well provided for behind the bat with Currier, who has been the backstop for the last two seasons. He puts life into a game and is a good general and batsman. Brown, from the freshman team, is eligible for the varsity this year if he keeps up with his studies, and in addition there is Jordan, another catching recruit from the freshman ranks. Graduation took away only two men from last year's varsity squad. One was Capt. Dexter and the other Howe, substitute catcher. Briggs is the most prominent candidate for first base. His fielding last year was tiptop, but he hasn't any sinecure in holding the place, for Hall, a freshman last year, is in the race. Second base is almost sure to be guarded again by McCall, who is steady and covers considerable ground. Simons at short and Leonard at third are veterans. Two likely understudies are Delano, third baseman on the freshman team a year ago, and Palmer, who was the freshman second baseman. Somebody will have to be found to take Capt. Dexter's place in the outfield. Harvey and Dana, good fielders and good throwers, are not strong hitters. Lanigan, the pitcher, can play the outfield, and his batting may give him a place there when he is not pitching. Hicks too can be made use of in the outer garden. Other outfield timber is Ferguson and Aronson, sophoof the men is good. If the batting and base running strength pans out as well as then Harvard has an outlook for the charnpionship second only possibly to Princeton. This year Harvard will meet Georgetown for the first time since relations were broken off owing to Harvard playing Matthews, the negro shortstop.

Yale this year has gone back to the graduate coaching system, from which better results have been had at New Haven than from professional coaching. Good material went to waste at Yale last year, and the feeling there is that while professional coaching may impart a certain finish of technical excellence, the moral qualities of spirit and determination are more desirable, and that the graduate system is the one to bring them about. The proper poise of the body is all right so far as it goes, but the mental and moral tone is considered more desirable. Of last year's team at Yale there are left: Cushing, first base; T. Jones, captain and catcher; H. Jones, Van Vleck and Parsons, pitchers; Sweeney, first base and outfielder; Williams, second base and third base, and Clifford, outfielder. There is some rattling good material from last year's freshman squad. Among these players are Merritt, pitcher; Coy, first base; Wheaton, second base; Fels, shortstop, and Murphy, outfielder. Prom last year's college team there are the following players to draw from: Dunbar, pitcher; Cushman, shortstop; Romar, outfielder; Schlafley, outfielder, and Jefferson, first baseman. As concerns Yale's pitching outlook much depends on whether three of the leading candidates-Merritt, Van Vleck and Dunbar-succeed in their studies to the satisfaction of the faculty. Of these Merritt is the most promising—one of the best twirlers that have come to Yale in a long time—and Yale's outlook in a measure is dependent on whether he and the others play in the big games. If they do the out-play in the big games. If they do the outlook is promising.

Tad Jones, the Yale captain, is the best college catcher in the East. He knows the game, is a good leader, a fine hitter and thrower and receiver of pitched balls. As a substitute catcher there is Philbin, from last year's freshman nine. Several of these freshmen were handy boys with the stick and the Blue promises to be strong in that department. There are enough speedy men to produce a good baserunning combination if there is the necessary headwork with the baserunning. Baserunning is a phase of the game that is mostly conspicuous by its absence from college teams. More steadiness in fielding than last year will improve hese in fielding than last year will improve the Yale outlook, but there is no serious defect in that regard. If the pitching strength is produced the Yalensians bid fair to cut a figure in the championship. The best outlook of all is at Princeton.

The best outlook of all is at Princeton. To say that the Tigers have good prospects is to carry coals to Newcastle. It is seldom they fail to turn out a strong team. They get good material and seem to have the knack of making the most of it. The outlook this year is better than the average, and that is saying a good deal. So with the supply on hand if Princeton fails to land on top it will be a surprise and a departure from what generally happens.

on top it will be a surprise and a departure from what generally happens.

Capt. Harlan, a fine player in every respect and noted as a timely batter, has from last year's varsity players the following: Heyniger, pitcher; Dillon, second base; Sides, third base; Vaughn, shortstop, and Wister, right field. There is not a weak player among this lot. Probably the star of the group is Vaughn, who knows more baseball than any other man on the team and who is likely to be next year's captain. He handles himself in fine style and can sting the leather. Vacancies to be

It will not be easy to get a catcher to come up to the mark set by Jim Cooney. Dawson, Watkins and Phillips are the leading candidates, Dawson being rated a first class catcher. Hamill, Selby and Warwick are the first base candidates, with Warwick and Pitman to choose from for the vacancy in the field.

In the box the Nassau men, are very Warwick and Pitman to choose from for the vacancy in the field.

In the box the Nassau men are very formidable. To begin with, there is Heyniger, a strapping big chap, who has had big league offers. He has yet to lose an important game, and to help him out there are Drews, whose work last year was first cass, and Clark and Wilson, pitchers of ability. The material all in all insures more of that slashing, peppery style of play that has brought so many championships to Princeton. The team is one of nicely distributed strength. The head coach this year will be Dutch Meier, who was a hard hitter and outfielder when in college and who has learned more baseball in the National League arena.

Poor success has attended the University of Pennsylvania in baseball in recent years, but they are hoping there that 1908 will be a good year. If it is not it will not be for want of capable guidance. John Blakely, captain of the varsity teams of 1895 and 1896, will be head coach, and he will have the advice of Arthur Irwin, the veteran player and strategist. In the pitching line there is quantity at any rate—Fennel, Simpson, Twitmire, Collier, Chapman and Hessee. The last two named are lefthanders and come from last year's freshman nine.

Porte and Allen are the backstop candi-Porte and Allen are the backstop candidates, the former having been captain of his freshman team. Pauxtis, the football player, is a first base aspirant, while Judd, who played first base last year, will probably be shifted to the outfield. Brokaw and Londrigan are second base candidates. Londrigan is reported to be a clever player. A lame shoulder kept him out of the game a good deal last season. Regan, another football man, is a prominent candidate for third base, while Corcoran of the '07 varsity nine and Wood from the freshman ranks are in the Wood from the freshman ranks are in the field for shortstop. Henry and Merrick from the freshman team. Smiley and Thayer and Judd are material from which an out-field is expected to be picked. What with these players and several of last year's freshmen who showed promise, the Pennsylvania outlook is better than for some syvania outlook is better than for some time.

*One of the hardest problems that faces Coach Coogan of Cornell is to find battery strength to reenforce the weaknesses incurred by the loss of the two batteries, Deshon and Hastings and Lovejoy and Graves. Caldwell, the football player, who was ineligible for baseball last year, is a source of hope that capable pitchers may be found. Brown, third baseman, and Bigelow, left fielder, were lost by graduation. Players again on hand are: Capt. Heilman, shortstop; Watson, first base; Gable, pitcher; Ebeling, right field; Reiber, second base, and Higgins and Fulton, outfielders. With that nucleus the outlook is anything but bad, provided the outlook is anything but bad, provided pitchers can be developed to measure up to the standard of the two stars who have gone. Furthermore, there is the up to the standard of the two stars who have gone. Furthermore, there is the freshman squad of 1907 to draw from, among these being Goodwillie, pitcher; Crosby, first base; Matchner, second base; Jones, third base; Williams, catcher; Lalley, pitcher, and Tompkins, White and Judson, outfielders. Whinery and Hochke are backstop candidates, Whinery being a catcher of considerable promise.

Christy Mathewson and Dennis Houle, professionals, are showing the young West Point baseball idea how to shoot, the entire squad being under the supervision of Lieut. Abbott, captain of the '01 team. Graduations last month deprived the soldiers of several first class players who otherwise would have played throughout the season. would have played throughout the season.
They were Groniger, captain; Beavers, Hanlon, Meredith and Bonesteel, veterans, whose absence will be felt. Still with the men who are left and the plebe class the West Pointers have hopes.

Annapolis has its entire team of last season and yearns for revenge on the Army for last year's ninth inning defeat. Dave Fultz will coach the Midshipmen again. These veterans will report to him Lamphier, pitcher; Hambsch, catcher; Stiles, first base; Bacon, captain, second These veterans will report to him: timber is Ferguson and Aronson, sophomores, and Pounds, who did some timely work with the stick last season.

To sum up, the Harvard team is a veteran aggregation, with a promising outlook for good battery work, clever in fielding and with several good stickers. There is every confidence in Pieper, and the spirit of the men is good. If the batting and low look is the promise and low look is the promise are Julian, infielder, and Scott, pitcher. Douglas, the football crack, is trying for pitcher. The Midshipmen look for one of the fastest teams they

The following members of last year's team are still in college and will play if their studies permit: extcher: Miltenberger, first base; Schmidt catcher; Mitenberger, first base; Schmate, second base; Zimber, shortstop; Hayes, third base; Shafer, Tonking, Smith and kimbel, outfielders, and O'Connell, in-fielder. Candidates of promise are Bor-chardt, an infielder; Hendrick, first baseman. and Stephenson, a catcher and captain of the '10 team. Bradtke and Lee, pitchers, have left college, and the chief difficulty that confronts Coach Goodman is to develop pitchers.

Although the outlook at Brown is no Although the outlook at Brown is not as good as it was then, the Brunonians are fortunate in having such an efficient battery as Capt. Raymond and Nourse. Nourse will be the first string pitcher and Raymond will do the bulk of the catching. Nourse pitched a one hit game against Harvard last year and for the entire season less than three hits a game were averaged off his slants.

Seven of last year's Brown team have aged off his slants.

Seven of last year's Brown team have been eliminated by graduation, including Tift, the pitcher. Minnerly, last year's ing Tift, the pitcher. Minnerly, last year's substitute first baseman, will probably be the regular at that bag this year. Regnier, captain of the freshman team, is booked to play second, with McGurty, a star freshman, at short field. Budlong is the leading third base candidate. In the outfield Dennie and Buss, who also is a pitcher, are reckoned as helping factors, and there are several men from the class teams who are being depended on to fill holes. are several men from the class teams who are being depended on to fill holes.
At Partmouth Capt. Claze, pitcher; Schildmiller, first base; Thompson, Sherman and Needham, pitchers; Mitchell, Hobart, Starke, Eaton, Smith and O'Shea, infielders, and Leonard and Ingersoll, catchers, make up a squad with which to begin a season of uncertain outlook.

There is a bright outlook at Williams, where a cracking good team was developed last year. Ford, the star boxman, though back in college, is not likely to play. Templeton will carry most of the pitching burden, and he is a good man. Leading catching candidates are Lambie and Oakley, but it will be a tough job to find a battery the equal of Ford and Waters. The infield is stanch with Capt. Harman at first and Wadsworth, Young and Lewis for the other positions. Kelley and Osterhout are outfielders who have demonstrated that they are all right, while candidates are numerous for the remaining outfield berth.

Barring the loss of one man by gradua-

Barring the loss of one man by graduation, the New York University team remains over intact. A good season is expected. McDonald, Townsend and Koar pected. McDonaid; Townsend and Koar are the leading pitching candidates, with Friederichs and Rust to choose from behind the bat. In Fitzell, a freshman, Capt. Mowen has a first base rival who is dangerous, and there are newcomers who can make the other infield regulars step some to hold their places. N. Y. U. has good material and a good deal of it.

After an unusually successful season, in which a fast team was developed from green material last year, Amherst looks forward to a still more successful schedule.
Capt. Beach, who played for Baltimore last summer, is the only loss Amherst has suffered.
Capt. Palmer of this year's team has played first base for three years. All of last year's batteries are still in college, and in addition to the two pitchers there is some promising material that will give the veterans a hard fight for their positions.
Michaels will again hold down third,
while Washburn, an Andoverman; Pennock, another freshman, and Jube will fill up the rest of the infield. The outfield is to coach the team, and from past results the Amherst student body has unlimited confidence in him.

Two places are vacant in the Georgetown infield. The vacancies are at first and second bases. Macdonald, from the Central High School, is a first base candidate and is a hard hitter. Mayock and Mess, infield recruits, will be tried out for short, and if either makes good Scheller, the regular shortstop, will be transferred to second. Smith is on hand to hold down third base again. Courtney Simon and Schlaffy, the Smith is on hand to hold down third base again. Courtney, Simon and Schlaffy, the outfielders, are all in college. There is a host of pitching talent and the outlook at the Washington institution is rosy.

The Pennsylvania State team threatens to be a formidable array. Among the pitchers is R. Vorhis, who beat Cornell, 3 to 1, in a seventeen inning game last year; also Haverstick, Mitinger, Skemp, Bray and Lynch. L. Vorhis, a first class catcher, is still in college, and for the other positions there are Capt. Cree, shortstop; Hirschman, first base; McCleary, outfielder and pitcher; Bubb, first baseman and outfielder; Workman, infielder, and Mason, infielder.

The The Students Who Make Muste the athletic council to give them the variative letters because it is the state of the sta

The members of the university band at Syracuse, those students who sacrifice their inclinations to watch athletic contests in idleness in order to play music for the others to sing to, have been rewarded at length. Permission has been granted to them to wear a varsity S, with a trumpet interwoven, in token of their activities. It is not often that a non-athletic organization gets a chance to wear athletic insignia.

This is something like the privilege for This is something like the privilege for which the Columbia debaters argued some years ago.

They contended that the members of a successful debating team were as much entitled to the varsity C as were the athletes, in spite of the fact that debating Uneanny Insects. From the National Geographic Magazine.

The wonderful stick insects of Fiji, familiar in all home museums, are found on nearly every cocoanut tree. They are very ill smelling and squirt a fetid fluid at one's eyes Leaf insects I never saw, except when the Leaf insects I never saw, except when the patives caught and brought them to me, but all the guava bushes have them, although a white man's eye can seldom distinguish them from their shelter.

They are most miraculous and uncanny creatures, absolutely leaves endowed with the power of motion, so far as the most scrutinizing eye can see, for even their legs and heads are a precise copy of stams and leaflets.

THE UNIVERSAL PROVIDERS.

Retail. Wholesale. Export. Block-Eighth Avenue, 35th to 36th Street Furniture Entrance: 260 to 268 West 36th Street, near 8th Ave.

We are optimistic. If we felt that business had received a permanent setback this store would not be as full of everything that is new in the Furniture line as it is. We are certain that business will continue to be good with us as it always has; consequently we have spared no expense in rehabilitating our stock, and we are keeping it up this year, quite as much as we ever did, to the highest possible standard, not only in the character of the merchandise, but in its variety. Prices now, as they always have been, will be the lowest possible consistent with good merchandising. It is only fair to say though that we succeeded in buying large quantities of the best merchandise from pessimistic manufacturers and as usual, you will share these opportunities with us BY GETTING THE BEST AT VERY LOW PRICES.
